Dame Tilahun
Full-stack Developer

As a mid-level full-stack web developer, I specialize in creating dynamic and engaging user experiences using Angular as my front-end framework. My unique combination of technical expertise and business acumen gained through earning dual bachelor's degrees in Computer Science and Engineering and Business Management, allows me to approach projects with both a developer's eye for detail and a manager's perspective on the big picture.

Oromia Broadcastig Network
Front-end developer

As a System Automation Front-End Developer, I am responsible for creating web applications that streamline and improve internal processes within the company. One of my key achievements in this role was the development of a web app that helps to monitor data flow within the company. This app has significantly improved the efficiency and accuracy of data management, resulting in increased productivity and cost savings.
